

National Radio Talent System Names Aimee Abel and Taylor Anne Wade Institutes Directors

December 2018

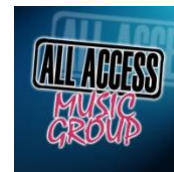

Aimee Abel

Taylor Anne Wade

Press Compilation

themouth BROADCAST MEDIA'S DAILY MIX OF TOP NEWS AND INFORMATION
NEWS | INTERVIEWS | ENTERTAINMENT | TECHNOLOGY | FEATURES | POP CULTURE

National Radio Talent System Adds Its Own Talent

December 20, 2018

The National Radio Talent System, now with 8 Radio Talent Institutes nationally, brings Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel to the newly created positions of Institutes Director. Wade has worked with Don Anthony's Morning Show Boot Camp and Talk Show Boot Camp, was a volunteer at the Country Radio Seminar, and was a Student Scholar at the NAB/RAB Radio Show. Aimee Abel moves from part-time to full-time, and was previously an anchor for iHeartMedia, Total Traffic and Weather Network.

Dan Vallie, President of the National Radio Talent System, said, "Both Taylor Anne and Aimee completed the Kellar Radio Talent Institute when they were students at Appalachian State University. They bring a passion for the industry and for helping people. We wanted them to be on the team and they wanted to be here. Things worked out well. I'm thrilled they are on the team."

Source

Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel

Dec 20, 2018

The National Radio Talent System has hired both Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel to serve in the newly created position of Institutes Director.

Wade has worked with Don Anthony's Morning Show Boot Camp and Talk Show Boot Camp, was a volunteer at the Country Radio Seminar and a Student Scholar at the NAB/RAB Radio Show. Abel moves from part-time to full-time with NRTS, and was previously an anchor for iHeartMedia, Total Traffic and Weather Network. Both individuals completed the Kellar Radio Talent Institute as students at Appalachian State University. There are now eight Institutes nationally.

Source

National Radio Talent System Taps Two for Institutes Director

December 20, 2018

The NATIONAL RADIO TALENT SYSTEM has brought in TAYLOR ANNE WADE and AIMEE ABEL for the newly created position of Institutes Director.

TAYLOR ANNE has worked with DON ANTHONY's MORNING SHOW BOOT CAMP and TALK SHOW BOOT CAMP, was a volunteer at the COUNTRY RADIO SEMINAR, and was a Student Scholar at the NAB/RAB RADIO SHOW.

AIMEE ABEL moves from part-time to full-time, and was previously an anchor for iHEARTMEDIA, TOTAL TRAFFIC and WEATHER NETWORK.

NATIONAL RADIO TALENT SYSTEM President DAN VALLIE commented, "Both TAYLOR ANNE and AIMEE completed the KELLAR RADIO TALENT INSTITUTE when they were students at APPALACHIAN STATE UNIVERSITY. They bring a passion for the industry and for helping people. We wanted them to be on the team and they wanted to be here. Things worked out well. I'm thrilled they are on the team."

The NATIONAL RADIO TALENT SYSTEM is the only program of its kind in the world working with the broadcast industry and universities together in a collaborative effort to discover, teach and prepare the next generation of broadcasters who can be hired today and be leaders in the industry tomorrow.

Source

Wade and Abel Join National Radio Talent System

December 21, 2018

The National Radio Talent System names Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel to the newly created position of institutes director. Wade has worked with Don Anthony's Morning Show Boot Camp and Talk Show Boot Camp, was a volunteer at the Country Radio Seminar, and was a Student Scholar at the NAB/RAB Radio Show. Abel moves from part time to full time. She was previously an anchor for iHeartMedia's Total Traffic and Weather Network. National Radio Talent System president Dan Vallie says, "Both Taylor Anne and Aimee completed the Kellar Radio Talent Institute when they were students at Appalachian State University. They bring a passion for the industry and for helping people. We wanted them to be on the team and they wanted to be here. Things worked out well. I'm thrilled they are on the team." The National Radio Talent System is currently producing eight Radio Talent Institutes annually.

Source

themouth

BROADCAST MEDIA'S DAILY MIX OF TOP NEWS AND INFORMATION

NEWS | INTERVIEWS | ENTERTAINMENT | TECHNOLOGY | FEATURES | POP CULTURE

The National Radio Talent System Adds Two Directors

THE MOUTH, DECEMBER 21ST, 2018 — The National Radio Talent System, now with 8 Radio Talent Institutes nationally, brings Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel to the newly created position of Institutes Director. Taylor Anne has worked with Don Anthony's Morning Show Boot Camp and Talk Show Boot Camp, was a volunteer at the Country Radio Seminar, and was a Student Scholar at the NAB/RAB Radio Show.

Aimee Abel moves from part time to full time, and was previously an anchor for iHeart Media, Total Traffic and Weather Network. Dan Vallie, President of the National Radio Talent System commented, "Both Taylor Anne and Aimee completed the Kellar Radio Talent Institute when they were students at Appalachian State University. They bring a passion for the industry and for helping people. We wanted them to be on the team and they wanted to be here. Things worked out well. I'm thrilled they are on the team. The National Radio Talent System is the first and only program of its kind in the world working with the broadcast industry and universities together in a collaborative effort to discover, teach and prepare the next generation of broadcasters who can be hired today and be leaders in the industry tomorrow."

Source

Friday, December 21, 2018

Volume 7 | Issue 245

The Dan Vallie-founded “National Radio Talent System” brings two staffers on-board full-time, both with the title of “Institutes Director.” Vallie’s concept, born on the campus of Appalachian State University in Boone, NC, was to “discover, teach and prepare the next generation of broadcasters who can be hired today, and be leaders in the industry.” Both Taylor Anne Wade and Aimee Abel graduated from North Carolina’s Kellar Radio Talent Institute, so they know what it’s about. Taylor Anne has worked with Don Anthony’s Morning Show Boot Camp and Talk Show Camp, volunteered at CRS in Nashville and was a Student Scholar at a Fall NAB/RAB Radio Show. Aimee Abel, who’s anchored for iHeart’s Total Traffic and Weather Network, had been with Vallie’s organization part-time, and now takes a full-time position. Last year there were state-based Summer-time trainings in Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Missouri and Washington State, as well as NC. The website is here.

Source